

Job application

Hey there,

Well, I spotted in a mag I was readin' that you guys want some new people to work for you and I reckon that I'd be good.

Your company sounds really cool and the position of trainee sounds awesome. I have a buddy who works for you guys and I smsed him and asked him what it's like working for yous and he said that I should def try and get the job cause it would be heaps fun to work together. But enough about why I want to work for you guys.

I'm a way good worker and my boss now'll tell ya if ya ring him that I come when I'm s'posed to and I do what he tells me and all that. I'm not a nerd like, but I reckon I'm smarter'n most and I pick things up real quick. i work hard too and i like bein' able to look at what I've done each day and think "I'm well proud!".

I was done with school two years ago and my grades were alright. After that I started working at the place I am now. I've learnt how to use the computer real good and I'm hot stuff with all the latest apps and stuff. I'm real good with customers too, even when they're really stupid and say dum stuff I keep it real and help 'em out. The deal is though, that it's gettin' a bit lame doin' the same old same old all the time and I reckon I need something a bit new. A bit more cash'd be nice too hey 😊!

I'm gonna send me CV with this letter so you can check it out.

Cheers
