EXAMINATION

Course code and name: SFEG112310 English: Grammar and Phonetics

Date and duration: May 27 2019, 6 hours

Lecturer: Lasse Ellefsen

Permitted aids: None

Information:

This exam in English 103 consists of three sections: Grammar, phonetics and didactics. Each section is weighed as 33%, and should each make up approx. one third of the exam.

Take the time to read through the different sections before you begin and plan how you should spend the allotted time (6,25 hours).

You will be tested in knowledge of the curriculum as well as your English proficiency, and both will influence your final score - so make sure to write properly and without spelling mistakes to demonstrate your written English proficiency.

You should find sheets of paper (or you may ask for this if it is not provided) in the room which you can use to answers certain tasks by hand should you want to. If you do answer e.g. task 4 by hand, you must make sure to hand it in to the exam officer in the room at the end of the exam.

The course instructors will usually come by to make sure that the exam is going well and to take questions (usually twice), but you may summon them at any time if you have questions.

GOOD LUCK!

Date of announcement of the examination results: June 17 2019

The examination results are available in Studentweb.

9 Didactics- task 1

The following part of the exam is to evaluate your competencies in didactics. This includes working with the Knowledge Promotion K06, language awareness, and the didactic choices made available to English teachers. Your answers should reflect your insight into appropriate approaches and methods in English teaching, reflecting your competency in planning, justifying, and evaluating an English lesson at the primary level. In addition, your answers should reflect your knowledge about language learning theories, learning strategies, learning environments and teaching materials.

The didactic part of the exam is approximately 1/3 of the exam. The didactic part of the exam includes TWO tasks. Each task must be addressed. However, each task is not weighted equally. Your written language competency will also be evaluated, weighing approximately 25% of the evaluation.

Task 1 (approximately 15%)

Write a text that explains how you would give formative feedback to the pupil of the given text. Include in your explanation the exact words you would use towards the pupil and why you have chosen these items on which you base your feedback.

Remember: 25% of the exam evaluation will also be your written language skills.

10 Didactics- task 2Task 2 (approximately 60%)

Create a detailed lesson(s) that will aid all pupils in developing the competencies and learning strategies necessary to improve the text included in this exam. Include any other English language competency you believe important to address in your lesson(s). Include the context of your teaching and the curriculum goal/area from the Language Promotion (K06) and the revised Core curriculum - values and principles for primary and secondary education. Use a didactic relationship model that includes What, How, and Why of your lesson(s). The Why of your lesson(s) should include practical and theoretical justifications. Your lesson(s) should include adaptations for all pupils using a variety of methods and approaches discussed in class and in the literature.

Remember: 25% of the exam evaluation will also be your written language skills.
